ITC launches the 'Probate Solicitors Network'

Bereavement Advice Centre identifies need for network of solicitors dedicated to probate

22 October 2010, London: ITC, the UK 's largest provider of probate services, today announces the launch of a national network of solicitors firms with specialist probate experience.

The service is called 'Probate Solicitors Network ' and will further broaden the range of advice and signposting that Bereavement Advice Centre, the free helpline and web-based information service provided by ITC, offers to its callers.

Probate Solicitors Network welcomes applications from firms of solicitors with probate expertise. Firms should be of a size to handle a minimum number of probate cases a year and have the requisite qualified staff dedicated to probate work. Please refer to our website for more details.

There are no fees for joining the Probate Solicitors Network.

Martin Trees, Chief Executive, ITC said:

"Through our relationship with Bereavement Advice Centre we have learnt that a significant proportion of callers use a solicitor for probate. Up to now, Bereavement Advice Centre has offered to give these callers the phone number of a solicitor from the Law Society 'find a solicitor' web page. The Probate Solicitors Network will allow it to go further, by referring these callers to firms with specialist probate experience, and will benefit member solicitors by providing them with regular referrals".
